

BEYOND GREEN

THE MOST SUSTAINABLE HOTELS IN THE WEST

As lockdowns start to lift, travelers are increasingly seeking getaways that give back in positive, consistent, and impactful ways, now having a better understanding than ever that there can be no personal health and well-being without planetary health and well-being. Beyond Green, a new sustainable hotel brand that launched last month, makes it easier for travelers to enjoy incredible luxury vacations that also support significant social and environmental change for the future. A selection of sustainable Beyond Green properties and their outstanding initiatives that guests can engage with can be found in the following pages. Travelers can also take advantage of the brand's Journeyer's Pick Package, featuring the best available rate plus a unique local experience or meaningful memento while on property, available at 15 participating member hotels for bookings made by September 30, 2021, for stays through December 31, 2021.

VERMEJO
A Ted Turner Reserve
(Raton, New Mexico)

Spanning 550,000 acres on the New Mexico-Colorado border, Ted Turner Reserves Vermejo serves as a private wilderness wonderland the size of a national park. In addition to protecting more than half a million acres of natural ecosystems and helping to bring the American Bison back from the brink of extinction, Vermejo has also restored the native Rio Grande Cutthroat Trout to its waterways.

BENTWOOD INN (Jackson Hole, Wyoming)

Just a short drive away from Grand Teton National Park, this cozy five-bedroom inn regularly hosts biologists and wildlife researchers to share their insights and knowledge with guests as part of an ongoing natural history lecture series. The property also serves as a founding member of 1% for the Tetons, which provides funding to local conservation projects and programs.

Sun Valley

THE ORIGINAL MOUNTAIN TOWN

As a former Olympic ski racer well-versed in ski resorts around the world, I know how fortunate my family and I are to live in a place as special as Sun Valley. My home for 46 years, I can attest to Sun Valley's incredible sense of community and accompanying lifestyle, along with the unlimited recreational opportunities found in our five local mountain ranges.

I've practiced real estate in the Sun Valley area for more than 20 years and welcome the opportunity to share my love of this very special place—America's first winter resort, founded in 1936—with you.

POST RANCH INN (Big Sur, California)

Post Ranch Inn is perched atop a dramatic cliff some 1,200 feet above the expansive Pacific Ocean. With roots dating back to the late 1880s as one of Big Sur's early agricultural ranches, Post Ranch Inn has worked fastidiously to regenerate and protect nearby natural features like the iconic redwood groves. The Inn has also implemented a landscaping program to remove invasive species and replace them with drought-resistant native plants. BL
